Pursuant to MCR 7.205(D)(2), in lieu of granting the delayed application for leave to appeal, the Court VACATES the restitution order and remands for a determination of the value of the property actually taken. Pursuant to MCL 780.766(3)(b) and (c), if return of the property is impossible or inadequate, restitution should be awarded by determining the value of the property prior to it being stolen less the value of the property when it was damaged, or at sentencing, plus the cost of seizure, impoundment, or both. The trial court can make these new findings based on the prior record if appropriate.

We do not retain jurisdiction.

Fort Hood, P.J., would deny the delayed application for leave to appeal.
